 - 2. D6 is considered the prior art closest to the subject matter closest to the subject matter of claim 1. D6 discloses (the references in parentheses relate to said document) a device for closing the female urethra.

The subject matter of claim 1 differs therefore from that known from D1 in that the device of claim 1 consists of an inert tube that is filled with magnetised or magnetisable balls in mutually attracting orientation or in which magnetisable rings are arranged in succession in opposite orientation, and which is shaped to form a ring.

The subject matter of claim 1 is therefore novel (PCT Article 33(2)).

3. The problem addressed by the present invention can therefore be considered that of producing a device harmonious. The succession of small magnetic balls in opposite orientation produces a strong energy field and vitalises the body. If, however, the small magnetic balls in mutually attracting orientation are shaped to form a ring, this gives rise to a calming, harmonious effect.
